STUDENT HOUSING REGISTRY OPENS

The Edmonton city-wide vacancy rate, which was .8 percent last spring and calculated at .7 percent in the University area with current estimates as low as .5 percent, leaves no doubt that the housing situation for students will be critical this fall.

One bright spot appeared on the horizon this week in the form of a student housing registry which, though it may not succeed in erasing the problem, will at least make positive attempts to relieve it. The registry compiles and distributes listings of available accommodation that are updated on a 24-hour basis which will be stepped up to every six hours later in August. Homeowners and landlords have been alerted through advertising on the radio, TV, in the press, and even in fliers to open their homes to a student by offering for rent a room or basement suite. The main thrust of the registry is to create housing which might not otherwise have been available.

Ray LaPerriere from the registry says their primary advice to students is to start looking early and be prepared to move in or at least secure accommodation now—not, as some optimists are anticipating, September 1.

The listings are available to students at the HUB office, SUB information desk, Lister Hall, Dean of Men's office in University Hall, and in the housing registry office, 234 SUB. Anyone with an available room or suite is encouraged to call 432-4212 at any time. After hours, a recording device will tape your message.
